Writing

It goes without saying, the problem of books and film adaptations is very controversial. In my opinion, films cannot compare to what books can give us.

As an example of poor films made from books, "Harry Potter" films are not really good. Although they are successful, many details were missed. However, "the Great Gatsby" is a very good film adaptation.

In fact, there will always be supporters and opponents of film adaptations. Films show people already ~~made~~ created picture. ~~It doesn't~~

On the contrary, ~~it doesn't do~~ they do not develop imagination like books do. Films are made to entertain, they are easy to watch. On the other hand, books increase vocabulary and broaden horizons.

In conclusion, I would like to say that films and books are both good leisure time activities. It depends on people's tastes and preferences what they will choose.
